Introducing....

Broadcaster Chaad Hewitt, 21, has moved quickly from student journalist to national media figure.

While studying at Bond University on the Gold Coast, a broadcast journalism assignment went viral and was picked up by the Today Show.

Chaad is trained across both journalism and film studying a Bachelor's degree in journalism at Bond University.

He has developed a hybrid media practice that blends newsroom discipline with cinematic storytelling – an approach that has earned national recognition and an audience of more than 1 Million followers across platforms.

His work reflects a new generation of media talent fluent across platforms, industries, and audiences.
